United States Bankruptcy Court for the Western District of Pennsylvania

COURT TO LAUNCH MOBILE NOW HEARING CALENDAR ON FEBRUARY 7, 2020

The United States Bankruptcy Court for the Western District of Pennsylvania is proud to announce the release of the mobile version of its Now Hearing calendar. The beta version of the mobile Now Hearing calendar will go live on February 7, 2020.

The Court introduced the first phase of its Now Hearing calendar in 2015, providing parties with a dynamic court calendar display that updates in real time. With wall-mounted displays located outside each courtroom, parties could track the Court's progression through its daily calendar and quickly identify the case being heard by the Court at that moment. Until now, parties had to be physically present outside the courtroom to view the Now Hearing calendar.

The Court will now provide remote access to the Now Hearing calendar, enabling it to be viewed on most computers and mobile devices through the following link:

The link will also be prominently displayed on the Court's Website.

The mobile Now Hearing calendar provides information about the Court's current hearing calendar as well as near real-time information regarding the matter currently being heard. Users will be able to access current hearing information for each judge and flip back and forth between calendars.

The Court encourages everyone to utilize this tool to manage their time at the Court. Although the mobile Now Hearing calendar is provided as an additional resource, it does not relieve any party of their responsibility to appear at all hearings in a timely manner.
